

SCHEPPS TO CLEAR
ROSENTHAL MYSTERYMAN ARRESTED AT HOT-SPRINGS
EXPECTED TO SUBSTANTI-ATE ROSE'S CONFESSION.

HIS STORY IMPORTANT

Believed That He Will Corroborate
Statement That Murder Was Investigated by Police Lieutenant Becker.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Aug. 12.—This week promises to unravel much if not all the mystery that still surrounds the killing of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, who was shot down in front of the hotel Metropole nearly a month ago.

With the coming of Sam Schepps from Hot Springs, Ark., and a possible confession from "Jack" Sullivan, the district attorney's office prepared itself today for new and important evidence that would corroborate the confession of "Bald Jack" Rose that Police Lieutenant Becker instigated the murder.

Schepps at Hot Springs has already indicated that he may confess everything he knows about the murder. "I am the keynote of the whole situation," Schepps is quoted as saying. "If I talk it will reach a long way. Schepps, according to Rose rode in the murder car up town and later paid the gun men for their work."

The public prosecutor has sent an officer to bring Schepps to this city and has also requested the Hot Springs officials not to turn their man over to anyone without instructions from the district attorney's office.

District Attorney Whitman wants his own men to see Schepps before the police get to him. The aldermanic investigation committee was scheduled to meet this afternoon.

The public prosecutor's office is said to have obtained information that Becker has accounts in no fewer than eight banks in this city and there are indications that since the murder of Rosenthal several thousands dollars have been withdrawn.

Max D. Steurer, went early today to the West Side court prison where "Bridge" Webber, his client, and one of those charged with the murder of Rosenthal is confined. The lawyer admitted he had received an urgent telegram from Webber.

Shortly afterward Harford T. Marshall, counsel for "Jack" Sullivan arrived. He refused to talk and hurried inside.

Ready to Talk.
Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 12.—"Jack" Rose has told things unnecessary in his confession to the New York prosecutor and has tried to get me "in bad," but I will not stand for it. When I get back to New York I will tell Whitman the entire truth. He can't give me the worst of it."

Thus declared Sam Schepps today arrested here for alleged complicity in the Rosenthal murder. He denied vigorously that he made a confession.

Schepps "Keystone in Arch."
Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 12.—Although Schepps maintains he has made no confession, at least he has made statements enough to indicate that he is in possession of details of both the shooting of Rosenthal and the New York graft system. "I am the key-stone in the arch," he said, "and when they get me back to New York the entire arch will fall," he declared and explained. "There was one important thing that we overlooked and that was to change the number of the automobile."

One statement he made has confused the local officers. "You can mark the date—the 25th of February all this investigation will stop," he declared, but he refused to amplify the assertion.

MURDER BAND GOES
TO ELECTRIC CHAIRFive to Pay Penalty for Brutal Murder of Mrs. Hall—Oldest Not More Than Twenty-one.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Aug. 12.—Five members of the band of Italian highwaymen and murderers who terrorized the Croton lake district in Westchester county a year ago, are to end their careers in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison this week. Two of the band are still in their teens, while the oldest is but little more than twenty-one.

The crime for which they are to pay the death penalty was the murder of Mrs. Henry Hall, the young wife of a superintendent of the aqueduct near Croton Lake. On November 9 of last year Mrs. Hall was attacked and robbed by half a dozen Italians who entered her cottage while her husband was at work a mile away. She was stabbed twice, one wound being near the heart.

The young woman, a bride of a few months, was in delicate health and was in care of a young woman nurse, who was also beaten and kicked, but who recovered sufficiently to run to the construction camp and spread the alarm.

A posse of sheriffs, farmers and laborers took up the chase and succeeded in capturing five of the Italians who had participated in the diabolical crime. A sixth member, Lorenzo Colli, said to have been the leader of the gang, was arrested in Brooklyn a few days later. Colli confessed to having been the actual murderer of Mrs. Hall. He was given a separate trial and was convicted and executed several weeks ago.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 12.—Government experiments aimed to find some way of checking the predatory activities of the beetles which bore holes in tobacco and cigars have been successful, according to a report made here today by W. D. Hunter of the federal bureau of entomology. The report contains a list of precautions for cigar manufacturers and the tobacco grower. Fumigation is recommended as an effective preventative. Investigation of the beetles' activities show that larvae are deposited in the open ends of cigars. When they hatch they eat their way out, generally boring the length of the cigar. The Japanese government was responsible for the federal investigation. The manager of Japan's tobacco monopoly protested when he received a big shipment of leaves that were perforated.

BULL MOOSE PARTY WILL PLACE STATE
TICKET IN FIELDRoosevelt Party in Wisconsin Will Probably Name Candidates After Meeting of State Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 12.—The bull moose of Wisconsin are in danger of running up against that provision of the constitution that prohibits "Cruel and unusual" punishment. They will not say outright whether or not a bull moose state ticket will be placed in the field, preferring to keep Gov. McGovern on the anxious seat, dangling between fear and hope.

The leaders recognize the fact that if the new party is to live over no campaign they will have to have a state ticket in the field in order to get a vote for governor, on which the percentage needed to get on the official ballot can be based. Yet, in spite of this, they profess to believe that the proposition is still in the air. Is it a safe wager, however, that there will be a bull moose state ticket in the field this fall?

"We will not permit one man to go about the state attacking our ticket with the tacit if not open support of the state officials," said Norman L. Baker, the chairman of the Roosevelt state committee, on Saturday, referring to Senator La Follette.

Hinges on Convention.
However, that was as far as Mr. Baker would go. A decision on the state ticket, he said, would not be reached until the state convention met. When that time came, he said, he could not state. He was waiting to hear from friends of Roosevelt in the state as to their views of the time and place when and where the convention should be held. Mr. Baker said this was a movement of the people, therefore a few leaders could not decide so important a matter.

The tenor of Mr. Baker's talk indicated that every candidate on the republican ticket would have to declare himself either for Roosevelt or Taft. Wherever this was not done a candidate will be placed in nomination against him. As all names have to go on by petition as individual nominations, it was held that there was no need to hasten the state convention.

Not One Campaign Party.
Mr. Baker insisted that this was not a one campaign party, but was going to stay, and from his point of view, was going to sweep the country. C. K. Lush said he felt his work was completed when he delivered a Wisconsin delegation in Chicago. While he remained a member of the advisory committee, others would take up the active work of the campaign. As to what would be done regarding a state ticket of the bull moose pattern he could not say.

The gubernatorial campaign on the democratic side is warming up. Friends of John C. Karel and A. J. Schmitz, who come to Milwaukee, with their confident predictions as to how their favorite will run at the primaries.

"Judge Karel will carry Dane county without any doubt," said J. M. Clancy of Stoughton, who was in Milwaukee on Saturday. "Every business man in Stoughton except one, is for Karel. The manner in which he is taking up his campaign is wonderful. Man who is working for him on their own account, with no connection whatever with his headquarters, and spending their own money freely in his behalf."

Stoughton Karel Club.

"A Karel club of 150 was organized in Stoughton and there are not so many democratic voters in the city. The other day we started out five automobiles with Karel banners for a trip through the county. There were seventeen men in the party and only three were people taking him up." "Dane county will be for Karel," said James A. Malone of Juneau. "There is no question about it. Schmitz will get some support in the county, but the most are for Karel."

E. J. Dempsey of Oshkosh said that Schmitz would carry Winnebago county.

"If the sentiment throughout the state is the same as in Winnebago county," said Mr. Dempsey, "Mr. Schmitz will win by a large majority. He will have a large vote in our county."

Judge Karel was in Milwaukee on Saturday on his return from a trip through the Fox river valley. He said that Karel clubs had been formed in every city along the Fox river from Oshkosh to Green Bay and that Karel had a large membership. Judge Karel said that on his trip he found much sentiment against the income tax. Next week he will make a trip through the western part of the state, coming back to speak at a meeting which will be held in Beaver Dam next Saturday.

Speaks at Marshfield.
Mr. Schmitz, after a week spent in the central part of the state, wound up with an address at Marshfield on Saturday night. During the campaign it is said he will visit every town in the state.

DEOMCRATS TO BID
FOR WOMEN'S VOTEMrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York City Will Have Charge of Campaign in Woman Suffrage States.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sengit, N. J., Aug. 12.—Though the Democratic party has no plank in its platform advocating woman suffrage, a plan has been formulated today by Wilson's campaign managers by which they hope to make a bid for the woman suffrage vote in the six states in which woman suffrage has been granted.

Mrs. J. Brodie Harriman of New York City is to have charge of the Wilson campaign among the woman voters in California, Washington, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and Idaho.

R. E. Davies, secretary of the national committee and manager of the western headquarters at Chicago, had an appointment with Governor Wilson today at which he expected to map out Mrs. Harriman's activities. Without going into the suffrage question Mrs. Harriman according to the present plans will make her appeal by speeches on the tariff and the high cost of living as well as legislation relating to hours of employment and the workmen's compensation act.

The matter as to be submitted for the Governor's approval and an abstract made by Mrs. Harriman on the workmen compensation act and the law limiting employment in New Jersey.

Economy in Campaign.
Economy to the extreme and the smallest campaign fund in the history of any party if possible, represent the wishes of Governor Wilson for the coming campaign. Discussing the report today that the democratic party wanted to raise at least two million dollars to carry on the campaign, Governor Wilson said:

"It vexes me very much that it has been stated that two million dollars has been fixed as the figure. I have not the slightest notion of how much is necessary, but I remember Mr. Bryan telling me the sum used in his campaign. I have forgotten the exact figures, but it certainly was under one million dollars. 'My desires,' said the governor, 'I intend to confine expenditures to a reasonable degree of economy and absolutely legitimate objects. I regret that it costs as much as it does to run a campaign.'"

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 12.—Without a word of debate the senate today adopted the Bourne-Bristow parcels post plan as a substitute for the house parcels post provision in the post-office appropriation bill.

The Bourne-Bristow plan would divide the country into 8 zones. Within a 50 miles radius the rate would be fixed at 5 cents for the first pound and 3 cents for each additional pound of 4th class matter.

A graduated rate to cover the other zones would increase to 12 cents a pound in the 8th zone, covering points more than 1,800 miles apart.

The house provision outlined a straight 12 cent rate on parcels weighing up to 11 pounds.

The Schakelford good road amendment to the bill to appropriate $250,000 for highway work in each state to be available when a state appropriated a like sum was defeated today.

PERTINENT REMARKS ON THE CONDITIONS

A PROMINENT CITIZEN WRITES COMMUNICATION TO THE GAZETTE.

ASKS SOME QUESTIONS

Relative to the Good Order of The City in General—Asks What is to be Done.

To the Editor:

Recently several young girls were taken from the saloon of R. F. Finley, 22 South River street, by the police. Five I believe were found in this and one other resort, a lunch room by Mr. Carroll opposite the post office. Of these five but one, a young girl in her teens, was taken into court and punishment meted out.

The mere arrest of these young girls in a saloon, presumably there for the purpose of securing intoxicating liquor or for some immoral purposes, is sufficient to ask why steps have not been taken by the proper authorities to punish the saloon proprietor for violation of the city ordinance and state laws. Thus far, I learn from your authority, nothing has been done in this direction.

If we are to have a city governed by the arms of the law, if we are to have the sanctity of our homes preserved, such flagrant disregard for law and order should be punished. It is up to the authorities to take some action and if they refuse to do so it is up to the citizens as a whole to demand they do or learn the reason why they will not.

As a citizen of Jansville, I view with regret the apparent disregard for the law as shown by some classes of people. I am sorry that our courts do not make a better example of the cases brought before them by meting out severe punishment to offenders. The court records, the police records, will show that many times during the past few months, young girls have been taken into custody by the police, being found intoxicated, or in disreputable places and that but a very small part of them have ever been taken into court and if taken before the court, have been dismissed.

In fact the names of some of these offenders will be found with great frequency in the court and police records. Why have not these hardened offenders been given a taste of the medicine due them? Why has not a young woman in particular, known as Griffin, been at least given a jail sentence for disorderly conduct? Her appearance in the police station, her alleged habits are such that they are a bad example to younger girls who are emboldened by her escape from punishment go and do likewise.

It is time to call a halt on this method and whoever is responsible for the existing conditions should be brought to time with a sharp turn and told to do their duty. The tax payers of the city pay the salary of the commissioners, the municipal judge, the city and the district attorneys, and also of the police and sheriff. If any of these administrative departments are lax in their duty they should be brought to time.

I am not a revolutionist but I believe if we have laws that they should be enforced. If they are not good laws then wipe them off the statute books and from the city ordinance. If they are good ones enforce them. Recently the council passed ordinances relative to the closing of saloons after eleven at night and on Sundays and for the removal or opening up of the saloons. These ordinances are now in force but on good authority I am informed that there are saloons where liquor can be bought on Sunday in direct defiance of the state laws and city ordinances. The majority of the retail liquor dealers are anxious to comply with the law and ask only that all be given a fair deal in the matter. If these saloons violate the law why are they not punished?

While we are on this subject I wish to go a step further and ask why the gangs of young loafers that are found on all street corners and about cigar and pool rooms are not made to respect womanhood and not leer and pass slurring remarks when young women and girls pass?

JUST A CITIZEN.

She had been ill for a long time and confined to her bed since May 1. Mrs. Canniff was the daughter of Ora Phelps, who with his brother, R. D. Phelps of Green Bay, and their father came to Jansville from Michigan, November 28, 1838. She was born July 20, 1843. She was married December 16, 1868, to J. Arnold Canniff, and has lived all her life in this city. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and a life-long member of the Order of Good Templars. WAS PIONEER WORKER IN SIAMESE MISSION

Late Mrs. Helen M. Chandler, Sister Of George W. and B. P. Crossman Saw Noteworthy Service.

A remarkable career in many ways was that of Mrs. Helen M. Chandler, sister of George W. Crossman and B. P. Crossman of this city, who died at Camden, New Jersey, July 27, and whose body was brought to the village of Afton for burial. Mrs. Chandler was known to a number of Jansville people, having visited her brothers here, and also through her prominence in mission work.

Mrs. Helen M. Crossman Chandler was born in Oneida county, New York in 1820. She taught school for a few terms, was baptized in 1837, and became a member of the Baptist church in Deerfield. Later she moved to Utica, New York, and joined the Bethel Baptist church, later the Decker Street church. She was married in February 1841 to the late I. H. Chandler, and in the following September sailed for Burma to take up mission work.

After a two years residence in that country they were directed by the Board of Missions to go to Bangkok, Siam. Here Mr. Chandler did pioneer work of incalculable value to his successors. He made translations into the Siamese language, made a font of type in the Siamese characters, and did considerable printing. In the meanwhile Mrs. Chandler was teaching and assisting in religious work.

Mr. Chandler was honored with the appointment of United States consul by President Buchanan in the latter part of his administration, and was personal advisor of the Siamese king. For many years he acted as court interpreter. The king on one occasion, in making a treaty with a foreign power, refused to sign the treaty until Mr. Chandler had gone over it article by article and explained it to his satisfaction. Mr. Chandler was also the tutor of the late king.

Mrs. Chandler twice returned to the United States to recuperate her health. In 1876 Mr. and Mrs. Chandler both came home intending to remain, but the king insisted on their returning. After she had been there about two years, physicians advised her that unless she returned home, she would not live long. When they made up their minds to return permanently, the then king of Siam arranged a farewell reception that was attended by all his court and thousands of his subjects.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler were each presented with a handsome present, as a memorial for their years of service. On their return to this country after thirty-nine years in the mission field, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler spent a year in Wisconsin and then settled down to make their home in Camden, New Jersey, where Mr. Chandler died in 1891.

The late Mrs. Chandler was of a very charitable disposition and few ever turned away from her door hungry. Her great-grand-mother was a direct descendant of Edward Winslow who came over in the Mayflower and was the second governor of Plymouth colony. She was 91 years and 11 months old. Her mother died at the age of 103.

PLAY OF MERIT AT MYERS LAST NIGHT

Dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's Novel, "The House of a Thousand Candles," Presented.

"The House of a Thousand Candles," a dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's novel of the same name, was presented at the Myers theater yesterday afternoon and evening under the direction of C. S. Primrose. The production abounds in dramatic possibilities and the cast here Sunday drew out many of the strong points of the piece. Mr. Helms as Bates, the butler was one of the strong characters and Mr. Diffa as Larry Donovan, the Irish adventurer was the life of the play and scored a decided hit. Miss Lynwood as Marian played her part in an engaging manner and Miss Wicks as Gladys Armstrong gave a pleasing interpretation of her part.

APPOINT ASSISTANT TO W. J. UNDERWOOD

E. W. Morrison Appointed Assistant Superintendent of Mineral Point & Prairie du Chien Division.

E. W. Morrison, formerly trainmaster of the Minneapolis division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, has been appointed assistant superintendent of the Mineral Point & Prairie du Chien division running through this city. W. J. Underwood is at present superintendent of the division but undoubtedly most of the work of the office will fall upon Mr. Morrison, as Mr. Underwood, has long been connected with the railroad, and is an advanced years. Recently he suffered a paralytic stroke, which made it necessary for the railroad to appoint an assistant to take charge of the heavier work of the office.

COMPLETE PAVEMENT Y. M. C. A. ALLEY

Finishing Touches Were Put On By Gund & Graham Company's Workmen This Morning.

The last finishing touches to the brick pavement in the alley extending from North High street to North Academy street to the rear of the Y. M. C. A. building and the intersecting alley running to Wall street were put on this morning by the workmen of Gund & Graham, the contractors. All that remains to be done is a little cleaning up of tools and materials which will have to await the setting of the cement filler. Brick to the number of 29,300 were used. The job was done in quick time considering the handicap of bad weather. Most of the men who have been employed there will be sent to Freeport to work for Gund & Graham, who have a contract to lay 1,800,000 brick in their home city this season. George Croft, who has been superintending the paving work in this city, will leave with Mrs. Croft next Wednesday on a trip to Mt. Clemens, Michigan. He will then go to Batavia, Illinois, to inspect some work done last summer, and after visits at Elgin and Aurora, go to Freeport, where he will act as foreman for the company for the rest of the season.

Notice—The P. A. A. will not give a lawn social Tuesday night on account of weather. Notice will be given later. Committee.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF SIDNEY ROLF UNSOLVED

No Trace of Him Found By Friends, Police, Or Late Employers—Has Not Been Seen For Week.

Not the slightest trace has been found of Sidney Rolf, the young railway workman who mysteriously disappeared last Sunday morning as he was supposed to be on his way from his boarding house to his work. His friends and those with whom he was associated in his work are more than ever convinced in the belief that he has met with a fatal accident or foul play.

HEAR SEVERAL CASES IN CIRCUIT COURT

Testimony Taken in Two Divorce Actions Involving Beloit Parties—Other Business.

Various matters came before Judge Grimm in the circuit court today. Among them were two divorce actions involving Beloit parties both of which were held open by the court for the report of the divorce counsel. In the case of Joseph Leibel vs. Delila Leibel the plaintiff and Mrs. Mary Webster were sworn. In the case of Lucetta Johnson vs. John W. Johnston, the plaintiff and Mrs. William Johnston gave testimony.

The case of the Huddles Lumber company vs. S. E. Madden and Thomas Madden, an application for a judgment on a judgment was also heard. The court ordered that the plaintiff have judgment on such note in the sum of $603.31 damages with costs against the defendant.

In a special term of the court for Green county the case of Henry A. Gagan vs. D. H. Higgins was heard. This was an action to foreclose a lien or pledge on collateral in which judgment was rendered for the plaintiff for the amount of $721.27 and the collateral was ordered sold.

USE LESS ELECTRIC LIGHT THAN CONTRACT PROVIDES

City Notified That It Had Not Exceeded the Amount Allowed Buildings Free of Charge.

Notice was recently sent the city council by the Jansville Electric company that the amount of electric current consumed in the lighting of the city hall, and three fire stations, did not exceed the value of $825, the amount allowed under contract for this purpose without charge. The city has never exceeded this figure, and less current than ever is required now because all meetings of the council are held in the daytime. The city pays $42 a year for each arc light and $24 for each 60 candle power tungsten street light. Trouble and delay has been experienced in installing the lights at the Racine street bridge because some concrete over-dredged and filled up one of the conduits.

The Ball Players' Protective association has elected Dave Fultz, former Yankee outfielder, now a lawyer, as president, and will demand mutual contracts. Organized baseball is now based on non-mutuality of contracts. Fultz says the association will be of great help to the player of average or less ability who is afraid to demand his rights of magnates lest he be shunted off to the minors. The plan seems to be to have Fultz become the players' mouthpiece before the national commission. Minor league players will be asked to join later. You can bet Johnson and Lynch are planning a fight on the move.

At last our friend the O. & P. is down and out. Poor attendance at the games and lack of proper financial support are the main reasons for the smash.

"The Red Sox will go through the Giants like an aeroplane through a flock of crows," says Tris Speaker. "We beat them four out of five in 1909," he says "and they won't beat us a game this year." Mathewson was much better than last year, probably as good then as he ever was. We beat him as easy as we have won any game this season. There is not a man on our team who is not just itching to get at Marquard. Marquard is a good pitcher, but not nearly as good as Joe Wood. He has won more games in succession, but he had all the breaks. Numerous times the hits off him ran into the field. While the Giants hit only about half as well, we have a better pitching staff, a better outfield and are better behind the bat than we were. Also we are faster.

Hugh Baxter, New York Athletic club official, has answered English charges that American athletes go out strongest for the dollar and that they specialize, being of little use as all around athletes. He says:

"At the average athletic meet in America the first prize is a medal, worth perhaps $10, often not more than a dollar or two. The silver and bronze medals for second and third prizes have almost no value except as souvenirs and trophies.

"I have before me the program of a little country meeting down in Surrey where a few London cranks competed. Before each event the value of the prize is carefully stated. The first prizes are valued at $45; seconds at $12.50, and thirds at about $6.50. The prizes are usually clocks, silverware, or merchandise. Thus the canny English amateur, if he is lucky, may accumulate $75 or even a hundred dollars worth of property in one afternoon.

"It is interesting to note that the Stockholm program contained two all-around competitions, one of five events and the other of ten. Both were won by an American."

EXCELLENT RACING IS TO BE EXPECTED

PREPARATIONS FOR THREE DAY HARNESS MEET ALMOST ALL COMPLETED.

STABLES ARE CROWDED

McKenzie String From Winnipeg Arrived This Morning—Entries Now Over a Hundred.

When the word "go" is given in the first race at the Park association's initial meet on Wednesday next, one of the classic fields of horses that has appeared on the local track in years will inaugurate the revival of racing in Janesville. Already there are over a hundred entries received and Secretary Putnam is having a hard time to find stable accommodations for all the fast ones that are arriving by every train.

This morning the McKenzie string from Winnipeg, Manitoba, arrived and are stabled at the grounds and others are expected this afternoon and tonight. Already the grounds have taken on the appearance of a genuine race meet and the old-timers who visited them yesterday snatched their lips in anticipation of the three days' program scheduled.

It promises to be a rousing affair all through. The track is in fine condition, the grounds have been put in excellent shape, the grandstand is able to accommodate a much larger crowd than hitherto and everything points to a most successful meet, if the weather man gives good, bright days. In this connection the forecast for the coming week may be interesting, although the weather bureau apparently has not been entirely correct this past month.

The Washington forecast is as follows: Moderately warm weather over the great central valleys, the lake region and the eastern and southern states is promised by the weather bureau during the coming week. Normal temperatures are probable on the Pacific slope and in the Rocky mountain region. The precipitation during the week will be generally light and local and fair weather will be the rule.

Secretary Lane of the Commercial club is following the suggestions of several of its members, that Friday be made a half holiday in the city so that all who wish can attend the races. Talk in this direction has been prevalent for some time past and many merchants have signified their willingness to close their stores.

Furs are collected in great numbers along the upper waters of the Yukon river. The Indian or white trapper is often satisfied with a price hardly commensurate with market value, even after deducting the cost of marketing. When taken to the United States, a price two or three times that paid the trapper is obtained for many of the furs.

WON'T REST UNTIL SHE'S PUNISHED.
SAYS MAN WHO CLAIMS WIFE SHOT HIM

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Grace.

"She is as guilty as hell," said Eugene Grace of his wife on the eve of her trial, which opened in Atlanta on July 20. "My wife shot me and I will enjoy testifying against her. She shot me in cold blood for my money."

The charge against Mrs. Grace is that she drugged and shot her husband in order to get $25,000 insurance which she carried on his life.

For weeks after the shooting Grace was at the point of death. He is now a hopeless paralytic.

ARE THEY INJURED?

There is a difference of opinion as to whether the income tax in its present form is injurious to the people of the state as a whole. The state tax commission has taken up cudgels in its defense in a carefully prepared statement which its secretary sent out broadcast and in reply the opponents to the present law replied in like manner. That the income tax is working already against the best interests of the state by the removal of many industries to other states, is certain; that it is too radical in its present form is also admitted even by the fair-minded adherents of reform. But the ultra radical stands for it in its entirety, while his opponent wants it stricken from the statute books without further delay. Harry W. Bolens of Port Washington, who, by the way, is making a campaign for the nomination for lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket, on this very issue, has the following set of reasons which affect the wage-earner and which he claims injures them.

"Success in money matters is a mere question of the excess of receipts over expenditures.

"The farmer with his products, the working-man with his skill and labor, the merchant with his wares, and the manufacturer with his output, quite naturally and at all times endeavors to get the best possible price for that which he has to sell. They all, also, try to purchase in the lowest markets.

"An excess of receipts over expenditures is profit. An excess of disbursements over receipts, unless for permanent improvements or investment, is loss. A business run at a profit may endure forever. One conducted at a loss will soon or late fail. All business, therefore, seeks a course that results in profit.

"The receipts of a business, being the result of sales at the best price obtainable, are always as high as they can possibly be. When business is run at a loss there are but two things to do: increase the sales so that the per cent of overhead expense will be reduced and a profit result thereby, or, reduce the disbursements. Disbursements embrace largely materials purchased, wages, taxes, and sometimes rent.

"Now, the great majority of employers prefer to pay good wages, although the agitator and political demagogue often try to make the public believe otherwise, but it is a fact nevertheless. Good wages, for the employer, means better workmen, a better and more uniform product, less anxiety and care on the part of the employer, and more loyal and a happier disposition on the part of the employee.

"When business is conducted at a loss, disbursements are more carefully scanned than during prosperous seasons. The owner quickly finds that over most of his disbursements he has no control: materials must be purchased at the market price, freight paid at regular rates, interest can not be reduced, rent is a fixed charge, taxes can not be lowered, and in fact are often raised. But one thing remains to be done:—

"Wages must be reduced, to keep the business from going into bankruptcy.

"Wages alone is the only item in disbursements that can be cut.

"A state income tax law, therefore, placing as it does an unjust burden on the industries of Wisconsin, is a blow struck at the working-men of the state, for every added expense to any industry is an expense placed on the shoulders of the workers in that industry.

"It is better to leave the money where the working-man has a chance at his share of it, than to turn it over to the politicians and the ever-increasing horde of non-producing office-holders, the burden of whose support has already become oppressive and intolerable.

"The prosperity of the farmers and working-men means the prosperity of all. Any law, therefore, which penalizes industry, discourages thrift and frugality, jeopardizes a high standard of wages, such as the Wisconsin state income tax law clearly does, should be repealed.

ARMAGEDDON.

Frequent reference during the present campaign to Armageddon, in political addresses has led to the inquiry, "What is the great significance of this particular spot?" In the rush of everyday life the average citizen lives, the tales of the old testament are oftentimes lost sight of and perhaps entirely forgotten. However, the Kansas City Star answers the inquiry in the following editorial: As the campaign progresses it might be well to remember the significance of the name.

"We stand at Armageddon and we battle for the Lord," said Mr. Roosevelt at Chicago last month, and several thousand persons cheered wildly at the announcement. Of those several thousand it is doubtful whether a half dozen knew whether Armageddon was a way station on the Missouri Pacific or the name of the Turkish ambassador. As a matter of fact it is a highly mythical locality, mentioned once in the bible.

St. John, in the last book of the bible, Revelation, speaks of a great battle which is to be fought between the forces of Christ and Antichrist, of righteousness and mammon.

"And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue, Armageddon," the prophet wrote.

"Them" referred to "the kings of the earth and of the whole world," and Armageddon was the last great battle, in which the forces of evil were to be forever overwhelmed.

The book of Revelation is not easy to understand, with its obscure references, its wealth of confused descriptions. The reference to Armageddon is very brief and somewhat mystic, but the analogy between the situation the prophet predicted and that existing today, is not difficult to see. On the one side all the forces of corruption, of special privilege, of dishonesty lined up together in unholy warfare; on the other the people the voice of whom is the voice of God. One has only to know a little of the history of Armageddon to perceive the appropriateness of Roosevelt's imagery.

The real earthly Armageddon to which St. John referred, Bible scholars are agreed, was the plain of Esdraelon in Palestine. It was a historic battle ground, and most of the great struggles for the possession of Israel have been fought there. It may well have been on the plain of Esdraelon, or Armageddon, that "the Assyrian came down like a wolf on the fold, his cohorts all gleaming in purple and gold." But the Assyrian was overthrown, as the forces of unrighteousness are always overthrown at Armageddon.

The historic plain separates the mountain ranges of Galilee from the mountains of Samaria. Through it flows "the Brook Kishon," where the prophet Elijah slew the priests of Baal. There Barak triumphed over Sisera, the Assyrian captain whom the Hebrew woman Jael slew while he slept, and counted it a holy deed. There Gideon overcame the Midianites, although his army numbered only 300 men, and "the Midianites and the Amalekites and all the children of the East lay along in the valley like grasshoppers for multitude, as the sands by the seashore for multitude."

But God put fear into their hearts, and they trembled in their tents, fearing they knew not what. Thus Gideon and his servant, Phurah, creeping by night among the tents of the enemy, heard a man telling of a dream that had come to him, how a loaf of barley bread had fallen into the midst of the host of Midian, and striking a tent had caused it to fall.

"And his fellow answered and said: This is nothing else save the sword of Gideon, the son of Joush, a man of Israel, for into his hand hath God delivered Midian and all the host."

And when Gideon saw the fear that was on the host his heart was light and he went back swiftly to his little army, and bade every man take a pitcher, and a lamp therein, and in the other hand a trumpet, and they crept down until they were all about the host of the enemy, and at a given signal every man broke the earthen pitcher that was in his hand, so that the lights flared up, and they all blew their trumpets and cried, "The sword of the Lord and Gideon," and the invaders, already terror-stricken and with nerves unstrung, sprang up in a wild terror, and seizing their weapons fell on each other. Thus the Assyrians perished by their own hands.

It was across the plain of Armageddon the Jelu came-riding, after he had killed the wicked Ahab, and coming to the king's palace cause Jezebel

The Ice-man

Of all the animals that roam Upon the earth and call it home, Or revel in the ocean's foam, I'd rather be the ice-man. The desert lion reigns supreme, At scarin' folks he's one whole team. But still, this is no idle dream, I'd rather be the ice-man.

He backs his wagon to our door, About the sleepy hour of four, Lets out a yell and then some more, This energetic ice-man. There comes a tumble, then a whack, As something heavy hits our back— And sends cold shivers up my back—

A good aim for the ice-man. Just when a fellow's dreaming nice He hears the warning cry of "Ice!" Which makes him think about the price.

To settle with the ice-man. Just when a fellow has forgot His troubles and has got a lot Of money for to buy a yacht— He hears the howling ice-man.

He is a monarch in a way Of all the things he can survey. He is a king who's come to stay— The high and mighty ice-man.

He is the gent that got's the dough, It matters not where he may go, For just one summer time or so, I'd like to be the ice-man.

Some Valuable Hints on Canning.

Always screw the lids of the glass fruit jars on so tightly that it will be necessary to break the cans open with a hammer next winter. This is one of the first principles of canning and it should never be violated. Can everything you find except your husband. You may need him from time to time.

It is better to remove the pits from the peaches before canning them, for the pits are hard to digest and form a very heavy diet when eaten in the winter. Canned peaches are more to be pitied than canned.

According to Uncle Abner.

When Anse Friebay, our banker, built his new house about twelve years ago he put in a magnificent library. He told the book agent he wanted the books all the same size so they would look symmetrical. The other day he found out for the first time that his bookcase contained 500 volumes of "Quo Vadis." Prosperity has struck our village recently, as the potato bug season is on. Late Higgins who claims to be to be thrown down from an upper window.

Thus when the prophet saw in a vision a great and final battle, in which the forces of evil should be overcome, his mind's eye cast the struggle upon the Plain of Armageddon.

Evidently some men think they belong to the privileged class or have a "pull" in some direction where it makes it dangerous to view too closely their methods of doing business. It is about time that Janesville put a stop to this supposition. The change from the common council government to that of rule by commission, was made because there was too much special privilege and the warning should have been significant.

This week Janesville will make its bow to the harness racing game and will hold the first real track meet in years. Present indications are that it will be a success and in order to make it so citizens are urged to support the project by their attendance.

It is claimed now that automobiles and easy living are causing American women to lose their slenderness and grace of figure. This probably comes from some dyspeptic who hasn't laughed since the last time he saw a fat woman riding a bicycle.

Anyway, the last Chicago convention was one from which a considerable number of the delegates didn't go home broke and with a headache.

Next thing, some of the state legislatures and city councils may make the carrying of concealed daggers a prison offense.

An open winter becomes somewhat of a nuisance in the middle of August.

Tennyson's Forty-Year Old Boots. Tennyson possessed a pair of boots well nigh as long lived as those of the old farmer described by Richard Jeffries. William Allingham notes in his diary on March 2, 1881, that "Browning died at Tennyson's last night. Tennyson was in great form. He said: 'This pair of dress boots is 40 years old.' We looked at them, and I said it was good evidence of the immortality of the sole."—Lebanon Chronicle.

A feller who has got long hair and whiskers never need worry. If everything else fails he can start a new fangled religion.

Washington Barbers. The barbering business has been reduced to a science in Washington. On Pennsylvania avenue near Fifth street I found the barber shop I had been looking for. Outin front is this sign:

SHAVE 5 CENTS
CLEAN TOWEL FOR EVERY CUSTOMER

This is quite a radical departure and the shop is getting a lot of business. In most of the shops the towel gets to be quite damp with lather along toward 10 o'clock in the morning and by noon it reaches a point where it is quite necessary to substitute a new one to keep the barber from catching rheumatism in the hands. In this shop the price of a haircut is 7 cents. I am laying in a supply of them and have had nine haircuts since I have been here, enough in fact to last me a year.

The Washington hairdressing is the social, political and sporting center. It is necessary to buy a newspaper or go up to the capitol to find out what is going on. In fact, it seems almost like a waste of money to have congress meet at all with so many barbers shop symposiums settling all the affairs of the nation. One barber who used to shave President Martin Van Buren every morning before breakfast and sometimes two or three times afterwards, and who has shaved every president since, says he expects to live to shave President William J. Bryan. He must expect to live to be about the oldest barber the world ever saw.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

SAVE MONEY, YOUNG MAN.

"Coin'd money is flat in shape; therefore let it roll," says the spendthrift. "Coin'd money is flat in shape; therefore pile it up," says the miser.

Which is it? Both! Money was made to be spent—wisely. It was made to be saved—wisely. There is a halfway stopping place between the miser and the spendthrift. Do you "blow" your money? Is your roll no bigger than a week's wages? And you despise a "tightwad?"

Well, there is a reasonable compromise between stinginess and prodigality. It is the way of frugality. Economy is a real virtue. Thrift is a real blessing.

Suppose you should try to save 25 per cent of your earnings? It will not easily be done. On every side there will be tugs at your purse strings. But if you are strong enough to make money you can be strong enough to save it. Saving is a wise policy because it produces ready cash. And ready money talks! It spells opportunity.

The time may come when a little ready cash will set you up in business. The margin between success and failure often is the margin of ready capital.

John Wannamaker's first wages amounted to the sum of $1.20 per week. He saved part of it!

Old John D. Rockefeller shows his book where he put down his first earnings. Always there was the margin of good savings.

E. H. Hartman, son of a poor preacher, always spent less than he earned.

James A. Garfield taught school at $12 per week and saved the money to take him through college.

In his early days James J. Hill always kept a little ready money in bank to make a first payment on something he could buy at a bargain.

"Oh," you say, "I'm tired of reading such examples. Times have changed." The times have changed, but the method of getting on in the world has not changed. While stinginess and parsimony may be next door to meanness and greed may lead to graft, yet—Stinginess is one thing; prudence is another.

Save some money. The habit will make a man of you. Self reliance, self control—these spell manhood.

Save some money. Get the habit. You will need the habit—and the money.

For a limited time you may see the Automatic Telephone system at Putnam's Store. Come and bring your friends.

Well, Where's the Error? "Many a young lady who objects to being kissed under the mistletoe has no objection to being kissed under the rose." A careless compositor made an error in the above, rendering it, "has no objection to being kissed under the nose."

IT'S WAR, SAYS INEZ MILHOLLAND, AND SUFFRAGETS ARE RIGHT TO DO VIOLENCE

Miss Inez Milholland.

"It's war in England," says Miss Inez Milholland, leader in New York suffragism, "war between the government and the women. The women have been forced to fight and smash and burn. They refrained from violence so long that I marvel at their forbearance." She defends the woman who set fire to the Dublin theater and declares the prison sentence a disgrace to the nation.

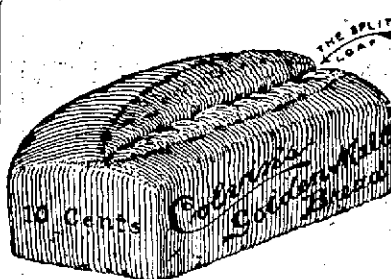

Watch Health of Children. In Japan government physicians make a thorough physical examination of all school children once a year, and there is a monthly inspection of them by the medical corps every month. There is also a monthly sanitary investigation of all school buildings, their contents, water supply, surroundings, etc.

Holland's French Laundry. In the sixteenth century clothes were sent from all parts of France to be washed in Holland, where the water of the canals was supposed to have special cleansing properties. The cost of transport was about ten times greater in those days than at present.

PREFERRED PAYING FINES TO SERVING JAIL TERMS

Three Out of Four This Morning Charged with Drunkenness Able to Avoid Imprisonment.

A comparatively well-to-do quartet were brought before Judge Pfeiffer this morning charged with being found intoxicated. Three of them, Ernest Hyland, Thomas Corkhill, and Christ Olson were able to pay their fines of $3 and costs. The fourth, John Hayes was told to "beat it" out of town without delay or else go to jail for three days. Hayes came here from Mariette. Hyland has kept out of court since last February. Olson was charged with a similar offense two years ago. Thomas Corkhill has kept away for some time. He attributed his last relapse to meeting an old friend on the train who pressed him to share the contents of his flask.

Judge John C. Karel, of Milwaukee, one of the democratic candidates for the nomination for governor at the September primaries, visited Janesville this morning and for a few hours held an informal reception on the sidewalk in front of the Sutherland Block on the bridge, to greet old and new friends.

Judge Karel came down from Edgerton this morning by auto, being accompanied by Charles Clifton, E. A. Green and Mr. Jensen of Edgerton. He is making a hurried tour of the entire state and while not making any set speeches is glad to explain his attitude on the income tax and other state issues to those he meets.

He was met in Janesville by an impromptu reception committee composed of George G. Sutherland, I. F. Connors, John Kennedy, county democratic chairman Edward Connell and Wilbur Ward. He was introduced by these gentlemen to those whom he did not know in the crowd that had assembled to meet him and personally greeted many old college friends and acquaintances of former visits.

In speaking of his campaign, Mr. Karel said, "I want it understood that I wish to be nominated, if I am, feeling that I am the peoples' candidate. I stand for the repeal of the income tax, which I consider injurious to the best interests of the state and for a sound economical administration of state affairs. I find this appeal to the voters is meeting with ready response and all over the state I am receiving encouragement to continue the fight."

"I believe the time has come when the state should be given a sound business administration, when the man who is seated in the Governor's chair should be free from political entanglements and if nominated and elected I will take office as such an administrative officer, free from all political entanglements and a representative of the people, in fact the peoples' governor in every sense of the word."

There were fully a hundred or more citizens who greeted him in the first half hour of his stay in the city and many of them were leading republicans. News of his coming was telephoned to several neighboring communities and the presence of many farmers showed that their interest in the political situation was intense.

Judge Karel later drove to Beloit, accompanied by Mr. Sutherland while a second auto containing several of the democratic candidates for office accompanied him. He will return to the city later today and this evening go to the western part of the state where he has several engagements to attend gatherings, picnics and public meetings.

As one former classmate of Judge Karel expressed it, "he looks just as he did in this fight as when he used to buck the line for Wisconsin in our annual fights with Michigan and Minnesota. He goes after politics with just as much earnestness as he did on the football field or in the class room, and they tell me that his work on the bench in Milwaukee county is of the same type."

All there all the time, Sundays and holidays. Never sleeps. Doesn't misunderstand or make mistakes. Automatic telephone service is the best. See and try it at Putnam's store.

WARNS AGAINST THE AMINITA MUSHROOM

Prominent Physician Gives Out Statement Warning People Against Eating Poison Fungi.

"Having just been in attendance upon a most distressing and pitiful case of fatal mushroom poisoning, I feel impelled to sound a note of warning," said a physician Sunday. "The continued wet weather has resulted in an abundant crop of wild mushrooms. I seldom have seen the woods at this season of the year so full of them and in such great variety as at present, and never have I seen the deadly Aminita in such profusion. It is easy in almost any woods about the town to gather in a short time enough of this most beautiful fungus to kill off a hundred people, and there is enough of it growing hereabouts to fatally poison the entire population of the city."

Amnita Family is Deadly.

"There are only a few of the hundreds of varieties, that are poisonous, and the deadly ones are nearly all included in the one family, Amnita. There are some twenty members of this family, all very beautiful in appearance, and some, even when they are edible, but while the recognition of the family is easy, the differentiation of the species is sometimes very difficult, and so the ban should be put most emphatically upon the whole family."

"Its distinguishing features are these: It is one of the 'umbrella' mushrooms, having white gills on the under side. The upper surface of the caps may have a variety of colors, from snow white to beautiful shades of orange and red and may be perfectly smooth and dry, or flecked with soft white tufts and quite viscid and sticky. The embryo plants are enclosed in a sort of egg or bulb, called the volva, which is from one to three inches below the surface of the ground. As the embryo grows it bursts through this bulb and pushes its way up to and above the surface, where it expands into the 'umbrella' shape. The volva remains as a sort of 'cup' at the base, and though the 'cup' character is not always apparent, the 'bulb-like' appearance always is."

The Death Angel.
"There is a delicate white membrane covering the gills in the young plant, and as the cap expands this breaks away from its margin and hangs as a loose drape upon the upper part of the stem. These, in brief, are the characteristic features of the Amnita family. In order positively to identify them, it is absolutely necessary to dig deep and get the entire plant. Breaking them off at the surface may lead to a mistake in diagnosis and to disaster if they are eaten."

"The most deadly of them all—the Amnita Phalloides, commonly called the Destroying Death Angel or Death Cup—is just now very abundant, and is the cause of the death above referred to. Every part of the plant is snow white and is very beautiful. Its poison is a toxicum called Phallin, and once in the system, it destroys the red corpuscles of the blood and is sure death in from one to several days. There is no known antidote to this poison, and a very small amount if it suffices to kill."

CHOKED INSENSIBLE AND ROBBED WITHIN A BLOCK FROM HOME

W. E. Mikelson, Chauffeur, Attacked Last Night By Three Foot-pads On Outskirts of City.

While the police do not give much credence to the tale of Wallace Mikelson, of 42 Ringold street, that he was knocked down and robbed by three men last night, Chief of Police Appleby is investigating the case thoroughly and intimates he may have something to say later.

According to Mikelson he was attacked by three thugs within a half block of his home, 42 Ringold street, W. E. Mikelson, chauffeur for Paul Colvin, was overpowered and choked into insensibility at about 10:30 o'clock last night, and robbed of $5.00, all the money he carried on his person. He did not regain consciousness until more than an hour later, when his cries for help brought a number of neighbors to his rescue and they removed him to his home. Dr. W. A. Munn was called to attend to his injuries.

Mr. Mikelson was on his way home from downtown when he was attacked. As has been his custom, he took a short cut between the vacant house and the barn which stand at the corner of Ringold street and Milwaukee avenue. An old buggy stood between the two buildings. As he came abreast of the buggy a man stepped out, pointed a large calibre revolver at him, and ordered him to throw up his hands. Mikelson refused him with a few curt words, swung is right arm, and knocked the weapon out of his hand.

Mikelson then tells how he fought with the men and was finally overpowered and left senseless in the grass. His cries for aid brought neighbors who summoned Dr. Munn. Mikelson is about the city today but says he is suffering from the rough handling he obtained. He claims he can identify one of the men as he had been followed once before and had seen the man about the garage.

POLICE DEPARTMENT OF NEW YORK IS MORE ON TRIAL THAN ARE THE INDIVIDUALS CHARGED WITH MURDER OF ROSENTHAL

New York Police Headquarters.

More than the individuals who are charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the police department of New York City is on trial. It is important to know who killed Rosenthal it is much more important to know whether or not the entire police force of the city is in a corrupt alliance with New York's underworld. If it develops that the New York police force is as corrupt as it is now charged to be, a strong effort will be made to overturn the present system, and make the police force answerable to state rather than to city authorities.

BULL MOOSE PARTY WILL PLACE STATE TICKET IN FIELD

The first edition of Secretary Dear's biographical work on the political candidates in the state, has been issued and is ready for distribution. Every voter in the state will receive one. It does not appear to be a popular work among candidates, most of whom seem to prefer to use their money elsewhere.

Gov. McGovern and A. J. Schmitz are the only gubernatorial candidates who have their names in the book. Judge Karel did not take the advantage of it, neither did H. W. Bolens, candidate for lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket.

In fact, the only democratic candidates who thought they could see profit in the publication are H. A. Moschlenpach of Clinton, candidate for lieutenant governor and C. A. Kading of Watertown, a candidate for attorney general. On the republican side Senator John A. Donald of Mount Horeb, candidate for secretary of state on the republican ticket and Lieut. Governor Thos. Morris, candidate for re-nomination remained out.

Both Governor McGovern and Mr. Schmitz pledge themselves to uphold the income tax law if nominated and elected. Mr. Moschlenpach on the other hand, denounces the present law as "unjust, unequal and in some respects highly iniquitous." Another edition of the booklet will be issued between the primaries and the election.

DIED ON BOAT RETURNING FROM A PLEASURE TRIP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Charles E. Windom, an undertaker and banker, Sterling, Ill., died suddenly last night on a boat while returning to Chicago from Petoskey, Mich., of apoplexy.

Scandinavian Brotherhood Meets.

Aberdeen, Wis., Aug. 12.—The Scandinavian Brotherhood of America began its annual convention in this city today with an attendance of delegates from various points in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

Wankind's Great Deed.
From Boston comes this wail from a long-suffering man: "God made the neck, man made the collar and the devil invented the starch." This generation boasts of many things accomplished by its predecessors as its own, but no genius has yet arrived to give suffering man a soft neck bandage, which is much more needed than aeroplanes and other curiosities.

Hard-Won Harvests.
Cultivation of the soil under a climate like ours invariably partakes of the nature of a gamble. The manufacturer, as a rule, can calculate the risks he has to run, and, if he is an adept, avoid them. Not so the farmer. Forces utterly beyond his control may undo the best of his work.—English Country Life.

The Universal Struggle.
Well, if we can't all struggle to succeed, most of us can succeed in struggling.

Invulnerable to Attack.
The weight of years never bears heavily on one whose heart is light.—Florida Times-Union.

Fads and Fashion

New York, Aug. 9.—According to the latest fashion, the pleated frock is coming in with a rush. It is here in a few advanced models of clever makers; but the fashion is too beautiful to be ignored and it is predicted that the pleated frock is to be a feature of late summer and fall styles. Silk in plain or changeable colors is pleated, for entire costumes that are adaptable for little runabout frocks or for elaborate afternoon gowns. There is decided fullness in skirt, sleeves and bodice.

Little, accordion-pleated jackets of soft chiffon and mouseline de soie are now threatening to replace the coats of taffeta that have been such strong features. Evening wraps and lovely negligees are showing pleating in either entire lengths or as ruffles on the bertha and sleeves.

But one thing must be remembered. Fullness there is in the new frocks, but balloon skirts are by no means in style. There is still the straight line of the figure to be adhered to, and it must be admitted that the designers have not introduced bulkiness, although they have given more actual fullness than before for several seasons.

The simple one-piece frock of linen, cotton, silk or wool, as it is known this season, comes very near being the ideal summer frock for the girl in her late teens, and the designers have wrought so many variations upon the theme that one may have a score of such frocks yet show no monotony save perhaps in the matter of line.

At this late day the shops offer any number of these charming frocks at very reasonable prices. There are plenty of frocks available for summer wear which might continue to give service during the autumn and even the winter for house wear. There are the pretty frocks of white charmeuse and of white taffeta, for example. Unlined, rolling back from the throat or in some way leaving the throat free, light supple, they are cool and comfortable for supper, easily packed, not prone to mussing like cottons or linens, inexpensively and easily cleaned and they will be found exceedingly useful in cold weather as during the hot season.

Some attractive variations upon this idea have been presented in broadcase charmeuse, all white, lovely in texture and rather dull in finish. The figured silk seems hardly so youthful as the plain, yet here and there one sees girls wearing frocks of it which are decidedly girlish. One of these frocks, seen the other day at a fashionable gathering, had a skirt absolutely plain, straight and narrow, though a little fullness in the back allowed the wearer comparative freedom of movement. The belted tunic buttoned straight down the front had a collar of finest linen and lace, frills of lace on its long close sleeves and a girle of bright blue velvet.

This note of vivid color in the girle of a costume otherwise all white is very generally used, blue, blue, blue and bright green being chosen more often perhaps than any of the other vivid tones, though in the popular narrow leather belts which are used upon anything from lingerie to silk, bright red is the favorite color for wear with linens and muslins, and the reds figure too among the silk and velvet girdles.

A good looking little crepon frock seen recently had its skirt, collar and cuffs of white cotton crepe with a fine stripe of red, and its cutaway, belted tunic of plain white cotton crepe with belt of red leather and soft cravat of red silk.

The cotton crepes and marquisettes are being much worn by girls, and some of the frocks in these materials are altogether charming, the marquisette being preferred for more elaborate frocks, although it is used for very simple models. Occasionally a fine white crepon has some original feature that gives it character. One pretty little white crepon, for instance, had embroidery above the hem of its straight, clinging tunic, and little separate clusters of cherries in their natural colors and a girle of cherry color encircled the waist, but there was no other touch of gay color.

The cotton voiles are even better than the crepons for the girls' frock, having the same serviceable, non-crushable qualities and lending themselves rather more readily to arched trimmings, and self trimming. These voiles are good in dainty striped designs—white with a hairline stripe of pink or blue or cerise and some of the most attractive frocks in such material have the stripe cleverly used as trimming and for further decoration, tiny frills of fine white linen which give a crisp freshness to the soft, filmy frock.

Dainty striped silks are made up in similar ways and often without the frills, the only relief other than the skillful handling of the stripe consisting of some bits of fine embroidery muslin about the bodice in the shape of collar and cuffs. These striped silks are particularly fresh and pretty in taffeta, but are also shown in radiums and other supple, lightweight silks. In taffeta too, the wider stripes in white and color, but the pin stripes have a more youthful air, and there are pretty pin checks, too, though these do not make so well as the stripes.

Striped gauze, chiffon, mouseline, etc., are successfully made up over white, in simple fashion with girle of color, and are youthful and delectable for afternoon or informal evening wear. Sponge of the cotton and linen varieties is another material which has won considerable favor, and suits of all white sponge are worn by many young girls as substitutes for linen. The material looks fresh even longer than the loose woven crash and the soft ramie linens.

Some fascinating afternoon frocks in charmeuse are arranged with fairly full skirts, adorned with a trimming composed of two deep flounces of cream-colored Mochlin lace. The bodices are draped with fichu folds of the same fine dentelle, and, to complete the costumes, charming little coats in shot effect taffets are provided, trimmed with lace at the neck and wrists, and lined with soft satin.

A novelty of the present season is the mingling of white or cream-colored lace with black. Sometimes there is a short black lace jacket combined with a white lace gown, and artistic arrangement allows the white lace to be seen at the sides, thus diminishing the too sharp contrast of color. The introduction of cerise with lace is frequent, the rage for cherry color being still very great. The white season is affecting even negligees. For more than usual of these airy garments are seen, made of India silk and lawn, fine linen, voile, allover embroidery and lace. The most open of such negligees require a slip underneath.

Undergarments, such as combinations, skirts and nightgowns, are being made of china silk or crepe de Chine, white or delicately tinted.

RAINY WEATHER HAS MADE ROADS HEAVY

And Member of Automobile Parties Touring Through Here Has Considerably Lessened.

Owing to the continual rain of the past week the roads in this section and other parts of the country are very heavy, and much of the joy of the motorist is taken away in having to drive through heavy black soil or clay, or take a pleasure trip in a machine with the rain falling steadily. Besides the wear and tear on the car is enough to discourage any careful automobile owner and as a consequence the number of automobile parties passing through this section of the country has been smaller than it would have been had the weather been more favorable.

One tourist, Mr. Gropensieger, of Oneida, South Dakota, who with his family stopped in the city yesterday and today on the return trip from Dayton, O., to his home, said he had driven through mud and rain all the way from Dayton to this city, and unless he found road and weather conditions better north of here, he expected to ship his machine and return on the railroad.

The number of auto parties registered at the Myers and Grand hotels Saturday and Sunday was smaller than usual.

At the Myers Saturday were: Mr. and Mrs. John Kjellander, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lindsten and E. M. Jackson, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dexter and son, and Mrs. Charles D. Fruit, South Dayton, N. Y. Parties registered at the Myers Sunday included: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gropensieger of Oneida, S. D.; P. F. Burgoyne, H. Johnson, A. Searley, Geo. Hanson and C. A. Fritzke of Edgerton. An automobile party comprising General and Mrs. Clark A. Browning and Chauncey Frazee of Toledo, O., and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Kempshall of Peoria, Ill., arrived here yesterday and remained here today, delaying their departure because of road conditions.

MILTON

Milton, Aug. 12.—The Whitewater Register, in its comments on the recent ball game between this city and Delavan says: "The best play of the game was a running catch in deep left field by Crandall and the batting of Bond, who played third for Delavan, hit the ball far and wide all but one occasion. Both players mentioned are Milton boys."

Mrs. Simerson and daughter, of Bladen, Neb., and the Bowden brothers, of Milwaukee have been recent guests of Mrs. Martha Reynolds.

WOMAN'S PAGE

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

E. Dora K. Woolley

Next time he asks you what you did with that last quarter of a dollar he gave you, Madame Housewife, just remind him that you don't have to tell him.

Cornman Pleas Judge Forum of Cleveland recently gave a decision to the effect that a wife doesn't have to render an itemized account of the disbursement of money furnished by her husband for housekeeping expenses. This in the case of a man who wanted an accounting from his wife for money which he said he had given her.

Usually the husband who is strictest about demanding a statement of how every penny was spent by his wife is the man who is most opposed to rendering any account of his own expenditures.

I wonder how some husbands would like to hand over to their wives an itemized account of personal expenditures each day, setting down every glass of beer, each picture show ticket, each cigar, each picture postcard sent to some feminine acquaintance, each tip to the pretty girl waitress, each dollar spent in a raffle, each dollar loaned where he knows he'll never get it back, etc., with a conscientious setting down of the balance remaining, or the balance he owes, after the day's disbursements.

Why shouldn't the wife demand an accounting of expenditures as well as the husband? Why should only one of the partners in a marital deal be required to render an itemized statement? Looks kind of one-sided doesn't it?

No man earns his salary more conscientiously or with more difficulty than a wife earns her "keep." Yet there are men who believe that they are doing something wonderfully generous to hand out the needed money to the woman who returns tenfold everything that is given her. They are in the position of those employers who pay starvation wages and work their help overtime—employers who are actually living upon charity of their employees. More than one of them lives on the charity of his wife. The stingy husband even goes beyond the tyranny of the head employer who would not think of questioning his employee concerning the disposal of the salary he pays to that employee. The employer's money, too, is not spent in the interest of his employee, while whatever the wife gets is almost certain to be spent in the family interest, her husband getting back a good percentage of it in some way.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a girl of fifteen and all the other girls of this neighborhood cannot go down the street without meeting their beau. I will speak to any young man I know but I don't think any of us old enough to go with a beau. The other girls think I am wrong. Do you?

OLD FASHIONED.

You are a dear little girl and I am glad that you are old-fashioned enough to be modest. A girl of fifteen is too young to have beaux. I hope you have some good boy friends, though, who have too much sense to want to be a girl's beau until you are old enough.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—In warm weather I am greatly troubled with perspiration on my forehead, as it makes my hair which I crimp, and causes the waves to disappear, leaving the hair looking as if it had just washed it. Do you know of a helpful remedy?

N. N.

Before crimping the hair, apply a curling fluid which will keep it in shape better. Pour a pint of hot water over a tablespoonful of bruised quince seed and let stand several hours. Thin with some drops of perfume.

Wipe your forehead occasionally with a little hot water or diluted alcohol, to prevent excessive perspiration.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1)—What is the best method of making friends? (2)—Can you give me the name of a magazine devoted mostly to poetry. (3)—I intend becoming an editor. What is the best way of making a start? AMATEUR WRITER.

(1)—Be considerate of others, good-humored and good hearted. Don't expect too much from your friends. Be generous as well as unselfish ones. (2)—I know of none. (3)—Get a job as a reporter on a daily newspaper.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) How can I reduce my bust? What foods should I avoid I am only fourteen years old. (2) When a boy takes a girl home who should take the leave? (3) When a boy treats you in an ice cream parlor, should you thank him? (4) When introducing a boy and girl, whose name should you mention first? (5) When a boy friend, takes a girl out should she thank him?—FOURTEEN YEARS.

(1) Leave your bust alone. You are apt to injure yourself for life trying to reduce it. If you wish to get thinner, do not eat pastry, candy or high starched foods. Wearing a corset will push the bust up and make it larger. Hope you are not wearing one. (2) The girl. (3) Of course (4) The girl's. (5) If she has had an enjoyable time, she should tell him so.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

IT IS a noble and great thing to cover the blind and to excuse the sins of a friend; to draw a curtain before his faults and to display his perfections; to bury his weaknesses in silence, but to proclaim his virtues upon the house top.

HOT WEATHER FOOD.

During the warm months it is wise to substitute nuts, cheese, eggs and milk for the more concentrated meat dishes. Salads, fruits and vegetables of all kinds are both satisfying and suitable for hot weather food.

Potato salads are great favorites, and may be varied to give variety. This is one that is nice enough for company. Cut in cubes six medium-sized potatoes, add two cupsful of cucumber cut in cubes, one cup of shredded almonds, two tablespoonsful of green and red pepper, a tablespoonful of onion juice; mix all together and add the following dressing: The yolks of seven eggs, gradually beat in four tablespoonsful of olive oil, then add a half cup of melted butter, the juice of a lemon, three tablespoonsful of salt, half a cup of vinegar, a tablespoonful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of mustard. Cook until smooth, strain through a fine sieve and add whipped cream to the dressing before using. This will keep for weeks if kept in a glass jar in the ice chest.

Potato Salad—Take ten small potatoes, boil until soft with the jackets on, cut in cubes, add three small cucumbers and three stalks of celery, also cut fine. Slice four hard-cooked eggs in very thin slices and put the ingredients in layers in a salad bowl, with a sprinkling of grated onion to give the salad a flavor. Then pour over the following dressing: Three tablespoonsful of melted butter, one tablespoonful of vinegar, salt and pepper to taste. (This dressing is simply one to season the mixture.) Just before serving add any boiled dressing; one like the above cannot be improved upon.

A very pretty and refreshing salad is made with radishes sliced thin, a few stripes of green pepper served on lettuce. French dressing is good with this.

Cabbage with peanuts and a few shredded olives served with a boiled or a French dressing is another favorite.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Going Home for Vacation

SOMETIMES the girl who is earning her living away from home rebels a bit at the thought of going home for vacation. She wants to spend her vacation with her chums. The "girls" have gathered in her room at night and told her of the "swell" time they have at the shore, or up in the mountains, or at the lake. They dilate about the young men who dance attendance upon them; upon the walks, the canoeing, the bathing, the hops; and they openly bewail the fact that she can't go with them. And sometimes she agrees with them that it is "mean" that she has to go home and miss all the fun. She knows it will be "awful dull" at home, and she thinks she might do as she pleases on her vacation.

But after the girls are gone, instead of remaining envious and bitter and maybe making up her mind that she will write her mother and say she won't come, she should look at the situation a little bit from the home side. Let her try to see the matter with her father's or her mother's eyes. It won't be many minutes before she is wishing she could pack up right away and start.

For mother is eagerly reading every letter to see just when her girl is coming. She is watching down the street or road, thinking that maybe daughter will surprise her. She is mentally going over the cakes and puddings and pies that her girl especially likes. She is thinking how she will mend up all her clothes, because the poor girl doesn't have time to half take care of her things. Every minute of her day is filled with thoughts of the daughter's homecoming. And even in her dreams at night are visions of the same happy event.

It would be a thoughtless or a heartless girl who would disappoint such a mother. There are not many of the plucky army of bread winners who would do such a thing.

Nor will the girl who goes home for her vacation lose as much as she thinks. It means a lot to walk into such an atmosphere of love as awaits the home-going girl. She will come back to her work better for the renewal of home ties. She will have none of that discontent and dissatisfaction that often fills the girl who comes back from some crowded resort. Instead, knowing that the eyes of the home folks are on her, she will be inspired to greater efforts, she will have higher ambitions, she will be keener to accomplish. And the rest she has had, and the love with which she has been surrounded, will make her better able physically to do her work than if she had worn herself out with the gaiety of a summer resort.

So the girl who knows that her mother wants her to come home for her vacation should not think she is a much abused person. Rather, she should rejoice that she has a home and love awaiting her, and she should likewise be thankful that it is in her power to bring so much brightness into her mother's life.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Factories have specialized the canning art until the pickles, piccalilli and sauces of commerce are delightful, but they one and all lack the "homey" taste of the good things that you put up yourself, and, aside from this reason, for doing your own canning, there are a few things that cannot be found on the grocers' shelves. Stuffed peppers, for instance. These are only to be had from some good country housewife who "stands on market" or from some generous neighbor, who is willing to share her store, and yet they are easy to make if you know how.

Take large sweet red or green peppers and cut a small slit in the side of each and carefully remove the seeds, or else cut off the tops of the peppers in such a way that they can be used for caps after the peppers are stuffed.

Make a strong brine and put the peppers in it to soak for several hours—over night is not too long. When you are ready to stuff them, shred white cabbage very fine and sprinkle it with salt. When this has stood for an hour freshen it and add a little grated horseradish, allspice, cloves and celery salt. The amount will depend on the quantity of cabbage. Mustard seed is a splendid seasoning, but it should be broken by crushing with a rolling pin before using it.

Stuff the peppers and sew up the incision or tie on the tops and cover with hot vinegar containing a level teaspoon of alum to each quart. Keep below the boiling point until the peppers are heated through; then pack in unglazed stoneware crocks in layers with grape leaves between each layer to preserve their color and firmness. Heat fresh vinegar and pour over enough to cover them.

Mangoes are small pickled citrons or nutmeg melons. Cut off the tops and remove the seeds and place the melons in strong brine for three days; drain and freshen in cold water over night. Green in hot vinegar containing a little alum and a few grape leaves; do not allow them to reach the boiling point; simply keep hot for

EAT MEAT AND EGGS SPARINGLY IN RHEUMATISM.

A reader asks that a diet be given for the cure of rheumatism. It has already been explained that one cause of rheumatism is the accumulation of uric acid from the food and that these foods tending most to the production of uric acid should be avoided—meat, eggs, beans and fish. In some cases an exclusive milk diet for a time may be beneficial, in others unpurified rice with a little ground bran and cream, but much depends upon the peculiarities of the case, and there are other conditions influencing rheumatism besides diet, which can be determined by a physician. The eating of much flesh and eggs is unnecessary. They should be eaten sparingly, if at all, by one who is predisposed to this particular ailment.

HUMBLE PIE USURY.

TO BE usurious and to exact more than one's just debt in a money matter is a legal crime. Everyone knows that. But how many people, I wonder, realize that to exact more than one's just return in other kinds of debts is a moral crime? I am thinking especially of the people who demand more than their due payment in coin of humble pie for offenses which they have suffered. Do you grasp my meaning? Well then let's be concrete. Say you are fortunate enough to have a friend and your friend is unfortunate enough to have offended you. She has hastily said or done something which, in her calmer moments, she admits to herself was not just right.

Now as soon as she comes to this conclusion she tacitly asks your pardon by being especially nice to you. She brings you some interesting bit of information which she thinks you will enjoy. She offers to do some little service for you. She makes a point of admiring some possession of yours. And all in vain. Under the sunshine of all her blandishments you coldly refuse to melt. You have a grievance and you will not give it up until you have your pound of humble pie. Being human, she finds it much harder to say, "I was wrong, I am sorry," than to act it. But finally she screws her courage to the sticking point and speaks out her apology.

Of course it hurts her; the words stick coming up and the humble pie sticks going down, but then, perhaps she deserves some hurt in return for the hurt she gave. That is her just retribution.

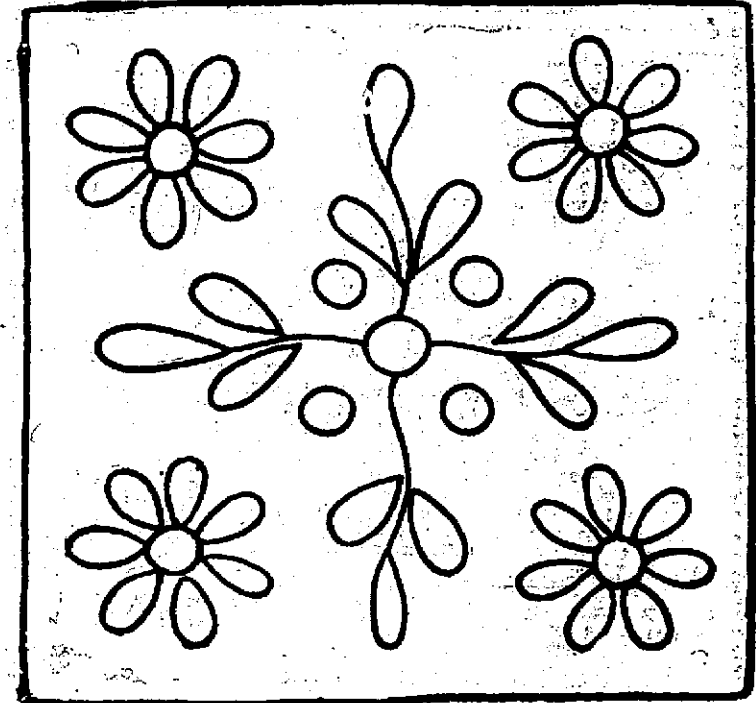

But as soon as she has done this she has put the burden of healing the misunderstanding on your shoulders. It is your turn to act now. If you had forgiven her after her tactful apology you would have been merciful. But you weren't that. Now if you forgive her you will simply be just. But if you fail to forgive you will be both unmerciful and unjust. You will be exacting more than your due payment for your cherished grievance in terms of humble pie. The burden of wrong has passed from her shoulders to yours.

Again and again I have seen breaches which were very hard to close opened in this way between dear friends and even between members of a family.

By and by the usurious one sees his mistake and tries to make it up, but by this time the original offender feels that he has a grievance in the injustice of his friend, and there are two raw spots to be healed.

It is a very fine thing to be merciful in such matters, to be big enough to accept the first tactful apology. But even those of us who are not big enough to be merciful can surely be just. And let's not forget that when we fail to be, we at once take the burden of wrong on our own shoulders and become sinners instead of sinners against.

And truly it's much pleasanter to be sinners against.

Baker Suffocated in Dough.

A baker employed in an East end bakery in New York city met with a strange death some days ago, when he fell into a huge steel cup used for mixing dough. The cup is stationary, but a number of steel paddles operated by electricity revolve about its interior, stirring the dough. A piston operating these paddles extends from the roof. The man mounted to the top of the cup with a pail of flour to throw in as a mixer. He grasped the moving piston and his hands slipped, throwing him headfirst into the dough and the revolving paddles. The foreman heard him scream, and shut off the power immediately, but life was extinct.

AN EXPLANATION

We are constantly asked how we secure such wonderful "faultless" results in dry cleaning and dyeing.

There are three main factors upon which our results are based—

Knowledge—Experience—Equipment

Most dry cleaners have a little experience and that's about all. We have studied fabrics and the effect of cleaning fluids upon fabric and dyes—gone into it deeply because we take no chances of spoiling your gown. To secure desired effects we have been obliged to find equipment manufacturers who would invent new machinery. Third: Our plant is so divided that we have operators handling the same class of cleaning all of the time. Lace gowns, men's suits, plumes, carpets—all are handled separately by operators who know just what to do, because they handle nothing else.

You are cordially invited to call and see just how we do it.

PROHIBITION PARTY A BEACON IN CHAOS

IN TIME OF POLITICAL UNREST
ITS POSITION IS UNQUE-
TIONED, SAYS SPEAKER.

STANDS FOR UPLIFT

Oliver W. Stewart in Address Here
Sunday, Points to Voter As Responsible For Legalized
Liquor Traffic.

"If a million men had cast their votes for Chaffin in 1908 there would be but one thing which would stand out as a beacon light in the present political chaos, and that would be the cause of prohibition." This was the statement of Oliver W. Stewart, the prohibition orator of Chicago, in his address at the Methodist church yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Stewart emphasized the necessity of an organized party which shall stand out against the organized and legalized liquor traffic in this country. Prohibition is a principle which can become effective only through the insistence of a political party, he said, which is pledged to fight for the uplift of men.

"Never has there been a time of greater political chaos," he declared. "You may say that a man is a republican and you are asked, what kind of a republican. You call a man a democrat and it means nothing until you have qualified and explained your statement by telling just what he thinks and believes politically. But this is a compliment to the voters of today in that they are thinking for themselves and that they are not being led by a few men who run the party for selfish ends."

In this connection the speaker pointed out that the prohibition party had stood for one great principle and that party and principle he would always support as long as it meant death of the organized liquor traffic. And he would never vote with a party standing for the perpetuation of the liquor traffic.

In opening his address, Mr. Stewart declared that the Christian church was the greatest organized force for good and opposed to it as the greatest organized force for evil he placed the legalized saloon.

He proceeded to indicate very plainly who was responsible for this powerful force for evil in this state. The voters with their votes for the parties who virtually say when they cast their vote that as much of the executive power in this state as belongs to me I will delegate to so and so, and as much of the legislative power in this state as belongs to me I will delegate to this man. And so every kind of governmental power is transmitted at the ballot box.

Saloon protected government is secured only by delegating the governmental power to men who stand for legalizing the liquor traffic and men who fail to vote for men who are out and out opposed to the saloon, are responsible for the present condition in the state of Wisconsin.

Here the speaker found opportunity to refer to woman's suffrage. The women were in no way responsible for these things at present, he said, but he hoped that in another two years they would have the right to exert their influence through the ballot. This declaration for the equal suffrage cause was greeted with applause.

In speaking of the case in Ohio where prohibition in some counties had been a failure to some extent, Mr. Stewart declared that a county could not be dry when the court house was wet. He explained that what he meant was that the saloon forces had been shrewd enough to see that if they could elect the sheriff and district attorney they need not bother whether the county went wet or dry. The officials would be on their side and that would be all that was necessary. The prohibitionists made their mistake when they failed to unite on men who when elected to office would stand for the prohibition cause which was carried.

Mr. Stewart is an eloquent and forceful speaker and presents his arguments in a logical and decisive manner. He began yesterday on an eight days' tour of the state on behalf of the prohibition party and will speak in about sixty different cities and towns. He filled three engagements yesterday speaking at Beloit, Janesville and Milton. Mr. Stewart also takes up a collection or secures subscription for the aid of the party's work. A considerable amount was raised at the meeting yesterday.

HAY FEVER SEASON IS CLOSE AT HAND

Many Have Already Begun to Sneeze and Will Soon Seek Relief in the Northern Pine Woods.

"A-chew! A-a-a-chew!"

The little pollems, millions of them, fluttering through the air, so tiny that they are not perceptible to the naked eye and hardly to the microscope, are scattered in all directions by the force of that "a-chew!"

Like bees, disturbed by some too enthusiastic summer boarder who mistakes their nest for a bank of mud hanging on the limb, the pollems rush to the attack. From all directions they pounce upon their luckless victim, seeking shelter in his unfortunate nose and eyes and ears. He struggles for a short time. But the odds are against him. He is like a man trying to fight in the dark. He succumbs!

Little Mercury Pollem hastens to the royal hobe of the King Pollem and announced:

"We nab got our first victib."
For the open season for hay fever is here.

The first sneeze of the season will be fired on August 15.

Countless little pollems are making ready for their annual invasion of the atmosphere and for the yearly attack on mankind. And it is a peculiar thing. Those who have the disease are not backward about announcing the fact.

Unlike most organizations which have a password, here is one which makes no pretense of secrecy.

You can see them on every street corner. The bye-word, perhaps you are less observant than he, is "a-chew" with rising infection upon the last syllable. And they have a peculiar language all their own. They say "hobe" for home and "dose" for nose and "gope" for nope.

Other characteristics are excessive use of handkerchiefs and lachrymal eyes. Sherlock Holmes, for instance, could always tell a hay-feverite, by ascertaining his laundry and checking the number of handkerchiefs he sends weekly.

But, they're a proud lot, these hay-fever brothers.

One declared only this morning it is an aristocratic disease which the ordinary lot cannot acquire. "Royal blood is the only blood which satisfies the hay-fever pollem," he declared.

"It has a two-fold merit," he said. "It offers a good excuse to those who have been married a long time to get away for a month's vacation."

The local chapter is pretty well filled but more will doubtlessly be initiated this year and on August 15 the exodus for other climates will begin. No hay fever victim will remain in so commonplace a climate as this.

No, it's the northern lake region for when where he can fish and hunt, breathe in the fragrant pine air, lie in the hammock and enjoy himself supremely for the period of a month.

Exempt territories are those near lakes and mountains and the Pacific coast.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

WALL STREET.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

Wall street is a thriving business institution located in the heart of New York. Its principal products are human suckers and ready-to-wear panics.

Wall street is very happily located, both geographically and financially.

It is bounded on the north by free access to Canada, on the east by the deep blue sea, on the south by the New Jersey trust laws and the United States mint, and on the west by a bumper crop of native-born gulls.

There is a popular superstition to the effect that the only kinds of live stock kept in Wall street are bulls and bears. This is a mistake. It boasts the most flourishing colony of goats to be found outside of the Emerald Isle, and when Wall street gets through with them there is very little left for the barber to do.

People do not fear Wall street as much as they used to. The one who made a few men on Wall street could pull off a tailor-made panic any time it became necessary to organize the White House on a sane and non-interfering basis, but since the haughty western farmer began loaning large cartons of currency to Wall street it has been in a more pliable and reflective mood.

Wall street is maintained for the purpose of allowing people with restless check-books to bet what the price of Amalgamated Copper will be two weeks from next Saturday. Very few people remain in Wall street for any length of time, as nine-tenths of them are blown out in the first inning bearing a look of pain and remorse.

There is no place in the world where a man can get rid of so much money on the installment plan as in Wall street, unless he buys a full set of William Shakespeare on a compound interest contract.

Every once in a while Wall street will get short of ready money and have to ask the treasury department to send for it. This time-honored custom has enabled many a Wall street operator to secure a new hold on life and a fresh change of linen.

TAKES EXCEPTION TO STATEMENT ON INCOME TAX LAW

Bolens, Democrat Candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Takes Issue With Haugen and Urges Repeal of Law.

"In your issue of Saturday evening writes W. Bolens of Port Washington, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, we are informed on the authority of Miss P. Haugen that the repeal of the income tax would raise rates, enormously and in the other we are informed that a return to the old personal property tax would mean, in many cases, six times the assessment under the income tax law."

Then Mr. Haugen proceeds to tell us that the enormous increase, in many cases six times the present rate, would be caused for the reasons that the income tax law exempts certain articles of personal property, and continues: "It would also make taxable every article of wearing apparel, every article of household and kitchen furniture, musical instruments of all kinds and growing crops. It would also make taxable the tools of a mechanic, kept and used in the pursuance of his trade; all orchard and farm machinery, implements and tools, no matter how insignificant in value."

But the commissioner does not tell us that the law of common sense, usually invoked by local tax officials, has never compelled the placing upon the tax rolls of all these various articles, no matter how insignificant in value.

Farmer Never Alarmed

"The farmer has never yet been alarmed over the taxation of his 'growing crops' assessed under the law on the first day of May. A compilation of the taxes collected on growing crops might prove interesting reading."

Thomas E. Lyons, one of the other tax commissioners, stated that the income tax is designed, ultimately, to take the place of the personal property tax. Prof. Adams, the remaining member of the tax commission has voiced the same desire.

And now one question: If the repeal of the income tax law would raise the tax six times because certain small items of personal property have been exempted, what would be the ratio of raise if the state tax commission's idea and intention of abolishing the personal property tax altogether should prevail. Would it be raised twelve or twenty times the old tax?

Not Necessary to Exempt.

"But it is not necessary to exempt any tangible personal property in the repeal of the state income tax law. The repealing bill can contain a clause restoring every item of tangible personal property to the tax roll. Mr. Haugen, from his long residence in Madison and close affiliation with the law-making powers, must be aware of this fact."

One sentence of Mr. Haugen's statement is amusing: "Those who cry loudest against the income tax are undoubtedly parties, who under the old system escaped their due share of taxation."

"I, myself, cried loudly. In fact, I carried my cry to the Supreme court of Wisconsin and am now carrying it to the federal Supreme court, and yet I have the reputation of having always paid my just share of the taxes, of having always contributed my full share for all public purposes, and, although not a member of any religious denomination, of having been one of the most liberal contributors to the various churches of my county, and I challenge a comparison from any of the shouters who favor the state income tax, who, so far as I am able to discover, almost without exception in the class of tax consumers and not of tax payers."

"My loud and expensive cry against the state income tax before the Supreme court of Wisconsin resulted in but one victory, and that was that state officers and other feeders at the public crib, although especially exempted under the law, were especially included by the decision of the Supreme court, and if the law continues in force, many of these political statesmen who shout so loudly for the retention of the office creating tax consuming law will have paid the first taxes that they have ever paid in their lives."

"Tax Commissioner Haugen's terrible picture of the consequences which would overtake Wisconsin by the repeal of the state income tax law, reminds me of the same picture of terrible calamity which he and compatriots predicted would overtake the state law when we proposed to repeal the Bennett law."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It looks as if the "Best-man" question has been settled.

"I wonder if Dominick Ryan'll be there—at the ball, I mean. His mother's made up her mind not to recognize the woman he's married, and to freeze her out, but I wonder if she'll have the nerve not to ask her tonight."

"I don't see how she could do that," said the girl. "This is one of the largest balls ever given in San Francisco. She can't leave her son out, and she couldn't ask him without his wife."

"Couldn't she?" said the old man, with a narrowing of his eyes and a knowing wag of his head. "You don't know Della Ryan. I do. I've known her forty years, ever since she was first married and did washing on the back porch of her shanty in Virginia City. She was a good deal of a woman then, a strong, brainy woman, and she's the same to-day, but hard as nails. I'll bet a bat she hasn't asked Dominick's wife to that ball."

"What do you suppose he'll do?" asked the daughter, somewhat agitated at this glimpse at the Ryan family skeleton.

"Don't ask me such conundrums. I'm glad I'm not in it, that's all I know. When two women look horns I'm ready to step quietly down and out. I never to my knowledge saw Dominick's wife, but I've heard about her, and take it she's a pretty hard kind of a proposition. They say she married the boy for money and position, and hasn't got either. Della, who has the money, hasn't given them a cent since the marriage; made up her mind, people say, to force Mrs. Dominick out. She doesn't seem to have done it, and I guess it's been sort of aggravating to her. Just the same I'd like to know if she's had the nerve not to send the woman an invitation to the ball. That would be pretty tough."

"I've never seen either Dominick or his wife," said the girl. "It seems odd when I know Mrs. Ryan and Cornelia so well. But he married the year I came back from Europe, and he's never been anywhere since. I don't believe he ever goes to his mother's. There's Mr. McVeigh in the doorway; we'd better be going."

Once again in the carriage they were soon clear of the last straggling shanty, and speeding along the pale, ascending road. The silence that held the trio before their arrival at Rocky Bar again fell on them. Wrapped in overcoats and rugs, every now and then—as the wheels jolted over a piece of rough road-bed—shaken into growing wakefulness. McVeigh also rolled sleepily in his seat, occasionally leaning sidewise to spit over the wheel. Only the girl seemed alert and wide-awake, her face craning out from the shadowed back seat, her eyes strained to pierce the obscurity; and see for the first time the landscape of foothill California, of which her father had so often told her.

McVeigh looked back over his shoulder, saw the bright eyes under the hat-brim, and said softly:

"The Silver Crescent stamp-mill. The last big mine we'll see."

The ascending road crept along the edges of ravines whence the sound of running water came in a clear clinking, dived down into black caverns of trees unlighted by the feeblest ray of star-shine, and then climbed in slow, laborious loops the bare bulbous, marks of the mountain. Had the girl been able to see plainly she would have noticed the change in the foliage, the disappearance of the smaller shrubs and delicate interlacement of naked boughs, and the mightier growth of the pines, soaring shafts devoid of branches to a great height. Boulders appeared among their roots, straight falls of rock edged the road like the walls of a fort.

McVeigh turned and caught the bright eye.

"Seems like your paw must think a lot of what he's heard about the new strike at Greenhide to come all this way," he whispered.

"I guess he does," came the response in the same key.

"It sort of stumps me to know why you came along with him," he continued, his eyes on the horses, but leaning back to catch her answer.

"Mightn't I just want to see the country?"

"Well, maybe you might, but it don't seem to me that you're seeing much of it to-night."

He heard her smothered laugh, shot his glance back to his horses, and then turning back to her.

"You're a lively girl, ain't you?" he said.

"I don't feel very lively just at this minute. I'm a cold girl, the coldest in California, I think."

That made him laugh, too, but he

"And So Your Wife Sent You Up Here to Beg for an Invitation."

turned back to his horses, saying with quick consideration:

"I guess you are. Come, boys," to the horses, "we've got to get a move on. We can't let this young lady catch cold."

The horses quickened their pace and there was no more talk. An hour later the first broken lights of Antelope sparkled along the road. The old mining camp, in a hollow between two buttresses of the Sierra, lay shrouded and dreaming under the starlight. A lamplit window, here and there, showed the course of its straggling main street, and where the hotel stood, welcoming rays winked between the boughs of leafless trees.

As the thud of the approaching hoof-beats woke the echoes a sudden violent barking of dogs broke out. Antelope was evidently not as sound asleep as it looked. At the hotel, especially, there was life and movement. The bar disgorged a throng of men, and Perley, the proprietor, had to push his way through them to welcome his midnight guests. Antelope, though remote, was in telegraphic communication with the world, and the operator at Rocky Bar had wired Perley to be ready for the distinguished arrivals—news that in a half-hour was known throughout the town and had brought most of the unattached male population into the hotel.

Jake McVeigh was pulling the luggage from under the seats and Cannon was interchanging the first greetings with his landlady, when the girl, who had gone to the balcony railing and was looking out into the darkness, cried:

"Why, papa, snow!"

The information seemed to startle every one. The men crowded from the doorway and balcony into the street. McVeigh set down the bags, and turning his weather-beaten face to the sky, uttered a smothered ejaculation of a profane character. Cannon came forward to where his daughter stood and looked into the blackness beyond. The girl had drawn off her glove and held her bare hand out, then stepping back to the light of the window, she showed it to her father. The white skin was sprinkled with snow crystals.

"Sure enough," he said in a thoughtful voice. "Well, it won't be the first time I've been snowed up in Antelope."

CHAPTER II.

A Young Man Married.

That same evening, at the hour when Bill Cannon and his daughter were setting out from Rocky Bar, Dominick Ryan was walking up Van Ness Avenue toward his mother's house.

Dominick did not know at what hours balls of the kind Mrs. Ryan was giving that evening were supposed to begin. It was nearly three years since he had been a participant in such festive gatherings. He had not been at a dance, or a dinner, or a theater party since his marriage.

He had heard that these "functions," as people now called them, began later than they did in his day. Stopping by a lamp he drew out his watch—ten o'clock. It was later than he expected. In truth, as he had seen the house looming massively from its less imposing neighbors, his foot had lagged, his approach had grown slower and slower. It was his mother's home, once his own, and as he drew nearer to it his reluctance to enter grew stronger, more overpoweringly oppressive.

The stimulating unquiet of festival was in the air. Round the mouth of the canvas tunnel that stretched from the door a dingy crowd was assembled, staring in at nothing more inspiring than the blank visage of the closed portal. At every passing foot-step each face turned to the street, hopefully expectant of the first guest.

The whining of catgut strings, swept by tentative bows, struck on Dominick's ear as he pushed his way through the throng and passed up the tunnel. Before he touched the bell the door swung back and a man-servant he had never seen before murmured politely in low tones:

"Gentlemen's dressing-room first floor to the right."

Dominick stood uncertain. He was only a rare, occasional visitor at his mother's house, and tonight the hall stripped for revelry looked strangely unfamiliar.

"Gentlemen's dressing-room first floor to the right," repeated the servant, and Dominick became aware of the man's eyes, fixed on him with a gleam of uneasy scrutiny shining through cultivated obsequiousness.

"Where is my—?" he was going to say "mother," but checked himself, amending it with, "Where is Mrs. Ryan?"

The servant indicated the open doorway to the right and Dominick passed in. Through the vista of two rooms, their connecting archways uncurtained, he saw the shining spaciousness of the ball-room, the room his mother had added to the house when Cornelia, his sister, had "come out."

As he entered he saw his mother and Cornelia. They had been standing in one corner, Cornelia adjusting the shade of an electric light.

His mother was standing beside her watching the arriving hand. She was sixty-eight years of age and very stout, but her great wealth made it possible for her to employ dressmakers who were artists and experts, and her Parisian costume made her look almost shapely. It fell about her in some jetted garnishings. With their shifting gleam the glint of diamonds mingled. She also wore pearls round her neck and some diamond ornaments in her elaborately-dressed gray hair.

"There!" said Cornelia. "Now they're all even," and she wheeled slowly, her glance slipping along the veiled lights of the sconces. In its circuit it encountered Dominick's figure in the doorway.

"Dominick!" she cried, and stood staring, naively astonished and dismayed.

Mrs. Ryan turned with a start, her face suffused with color. The one word seemed to have an electrifying effect upon her, joyous, perturbing—unquestionably exciting.

"My boy!" she said, and she rustled across the room with her hands out. Dominick walked toward her. He was grave, pale, and looked thoroughly miserable. He had his cane in one hand, his hat in the other. As he approached her he moved the hat to his left hand and took hers.

"You've come!" she said fondly. "I knew you would. That's my boy. I knew you'd come when your mother asked you."

"Yes, I've come," he said slowly, and looking down as if desiring to avoid her eyes. "Yes, I've come, but—"

He stopped.

His mother's glance fell from his face to his figure and saw under the loose fronts of his overcoat that he wore his business suit. Her countenance instantly, with almost electric suddenness, stiffened into antagonism. Her eye lost its love, and hardened into a stony look of defiant indignation. She pulled her hand from his and jerked back the front of his coat with it.

"What's this mean?" she said sharply. "Why aren't you dressed? The people will be here in a minute. You can't come this way."

"I was going home to dress," he said. "I am not sure yet that I can come."

"Why?" she demanded.

His face grew red. The mission on which he had come was more difficult, more detestable, than he had supposed it would be. He looked down at the shining strip of floor between them and said, trying to make his voice sound easy and plausible:

"I came to ask you for an invitation for Bery."

"Bery?" said his mother, expelling her breath in an angry ejaculation of confirmed suspicion. "That's it, is it? I thought as much!"

"Mamma!" said the girl who had been standing by, uneasily listening. "Mamma dear—"

"Keep quiet, Cornie," said her mother, "you're not in this"—turning to Dominick. "And so your wife sent you up here to beg for an invitation? She's got you under her thumb to that extent? Well, go back to her and tell her that she can send you forty times and you'll not get it—not while this is my house. When I'm dead you can do what you like."

She turned away from him, her face dark with stirred blood, her body quivering. Anger was not the only passion that shook her. Deeper than this went outraged pride, love turned to gall, impotent fury that the woman her son had married had power over him so to reduce his pride and humble his manhood—her only son, the joy and glory of her old age, her Benjamin.

He looked after her, uncertain frowning, desperate.

"It's not right," he protested. "It's not fair. You're unjust to her and to me."

The old woman moved across the room to the corner where she had been standing when he entered. She did not turn, and he continued:

"You're asking people to this ball that you hardly know. Everybody in San Francisco's going. What harm has Bery done that you should leave her out this way?"

"I don't want women with that kind of record in my house. I don't ask decent people here to meet that sort," said his mother over her shoulder.

He gave a suppressed exclamation, the meaning of which it was difficult to read, then said:

"Are you going to forget the past, mother?"

She wheeled round toward him almost shouting:

"No—no—no! Never Never! Make your mind up to that."

They looked at each other across the open space, the angry defiance in their faces not hiding the love and appeal that spoke in their eyes.

"Oh, mother!" he exclaimed, half-turning away with a movement of despair.

His mother looked at him from under her lowered brows, her under lip thrust out, her face unrelenting.

"Come here whenever you like," she said, "as often as you want. It's your home, Dominick, mine and yours. But it's not your wife's. Understand that."

The Paris Martin tells a good story of the Kaiser. During the German maneuvers recently a company of Dragoons was told off to represent a convoy of wagons. The Kaiser, riding over the field of battle, and seeing a Dragoon lying on the ground said to him:

"Well, what are you lying down there for?"

"I am representing a wagon, Your Majesty," said the soldier.

"Are you?" said the Kaiser. "Well, get up and join the others."

"That is impossible, Your Majesty," said the soldier, "because I have lost one of my wheels."

The emperor burst out laughing, and giving the man two shillings, observed:

"Here's something for you to get the other wheels oiled with."

Monarch Light Touch

there is neither three o'clock fatigue nor closing hour fatigue. The Monarch operator doesn't hammer the keys; she touches them. The mechanical principle exclusively incorporated in the Monarch completes the impression. A feathery touch starts it; therefore strength isn't called for and fatigue doesn't follow.

Letters written on the Monarch Typewriter are uniform in spacing, alignment and color.

In addition to the Monarch Light Touch, and the exclusive Monarch Rigid Carriage feature, every other important improvement of the modern typewriting machine, such as Back Space Key, Two-Color Ribbon Shift, Contained Tabulator, etc., will also be found in the Monarch. Let us demonstrate Monarch economy, strength and money.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 12, 1872.—Fifty Guns for North Carolina. Rejoicing Saturday Night.—On Saturday evening the Republicans of Janesville, in conjunction with those of many of the leading cities of the state gave vent to their joyous feelings over the grand result of the North Carolina election. It was the intention to hold the meeting in Lappin's hall, but as the weather seemed more favorable to an outdoor gathering, the committee decided late in the afternoon to erect a staging on one side of the corn exchange square, from which the speeches and music could be heard by a larger audience than could be accommodated in either of the halls. A gun was procured from Harris shops and manned by a detachment of men from the same establishment, who kindly consented to take charge of the piece and fire the salutes for the evening. As the thundering echoes of each discharge resounded throughout the city the people flocked to the place designated for the meeting, where the Bower

City Band had already been stationed and was interluding the artillery reverberations with selections of choice music for which they are famed. The glee club was also present and added to the already inspiring exercises their songs of honor to Grant and Wilson, the popular leaders in this political conflict.

About eight o'clock the meeting was called to order by Captain S. J. M. Putnam, one of the vice-presidents of the Grant and Wilson club, who officiated in the absence of the president, General Blinoff. After a musical prelude, General Isaac Sherwood, of Ohio, was introduced to the large and enthusiastic audience by Hon. C. G. Williams. After the applause which had greeted his appearance had subsided, the General proceeded with his address and held the close attention of his audience for an hour or more. The address of General Sherwood was followed by a short speech from the Hon. C. G. Williams and at the conclusion of his remarks a dispatch from the chairman of the state central committee was read.

Death of an 1812 Soldier.—Yesterday morning, John Skelly, a survivor of the war of 1812, died at his residence in the fourth ward in the eighty-second year of his age. Mr. Skelly was born in New Jersey in 1790, and had just attained the age of manhood when the war of 1812 broke out. The funeral will take place from his home tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

When the old man comes to his humble cot from town, where he toiled all day, when his feet are tired and his soul distraught, and his bosom full of woe, when he yearns for rest, THE OLD MAN with a great big R. don't ask him then if he'll work the churn or toil with a capstan bar. Don't hint around that he ought to take a turn in the garden patch, to mix things up with the hoe and rake and labor to beat Old Scratch. Don't intimate that he ought to jump out doors and a-jumping keep, and herd the chickens and paint the pump, and rock the old cow to sleep. Don't jar his soul with a list of chores, but let him sit on the porch, while the tomato sings and the built-up snows, a-smoking his five-cent torch. A million wives in the wool vest still cling to the theory vain that man should never sit down to rest, but always should sweat and strain. The old man comes to his lovely shack, and this is his greeting grim: "Go out and doctor the wagon track, and saw off that poplar limb; and weed the garden and wash the pig and saw up a cord of oak, and put new burrs on the thingumig which our batty neighbors broke." Some day, some day, the old man will buy a breech-loading gun, and then he'll string himself up to a tree so high he'll never come down again.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER
Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.
The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of concerns in the country who make a living through a merely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.
Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.
But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.
The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

Bravery a State of Mind.
The Norsemen never feared death. They were as brave on land as on the sea. It was their belief that brave warriors at death would be taken to the land of Valhalla, where they might fight and hunt and feast for ages. They believed that every night wounds received during the day would heal, and they would be ready for fresh adventures in the morning.
